As Our Readers See It

Beechamisms

I have read with interest the article on the late Sir Thomas Beecham by Norman Cribbens in Saturday's issue at The Times. It is bright and amus-ing, but frankly I would much prefer to remember Sir Thomas as a musician han by the arrogant outbursts attributed to him.

Many of these obviously were intended to make newspaper headlines.
His declaration that any cultural group receiving government, subsidies is "like a kept woman" was clearly not a mature thought but the kind of ironic comment a man might make after several drinks

It is a sad commentary that a great usician like Sir Thomas had to throw off such irresponsible statements to get publicity in the press for good music, which he undoubtedly did.

Myself, I shall treasure the records I have of his music and forget the kind of utterances Mr. Cribbens remembers. MUSIC LOVER.

I was very disappointed, as I know were many others, in Audrey Johnson's review of Victoria College's "Taming of the Shrew."

In her several years of writing the reviews for the annual college play she has never been so unkind.

THIS IS THE MAN WHO STEERED HIS COUNTRY OUT OF THE COMMONWEALTH:

He Is Not Perturbed by the Prospect of a Lonely and Perhaps Disastrous Voyage

A NYBODY other than Dr. Hendrik Frensch Verwoerd might have been daunted by the array of Commonwealth intellectual and political talent ranged against South Africa's policies at the Prime Ministers' conference. But this tall, heavily built, white-haired, and tire-lessly articulate "apostle of apartheid" has two characteristics which stand out above his many talents. He is supremely self-confident and quite fearless.

Even in the midst of the shock, blood, and turmoil of his attempted assassination last year. Dr. Verwoerd was able to make a sign to his stricken wife that the last thing he intended to do was die.

Although born in Holland at the beis in himself the most complete representative of the new leadership of the Union's 2,000,000 Afrikaners by Nationalist intellectuals. By his own account Dr. Verwoerd suffered his first blow in the cause of Afrikaner Nationalism at the age of 13 when his Dutch missionary parents were temporarily in Rhodesia. He was kicked 20 feet down the length of a Rhodesian school corridor by an angry English headmaster. The reason for the assault was that he had decided to go back to the Union, where the 1914 Afrikaner rebellion was still simmering.

The spiritual imprint of that Jingo-pedagogue's boot has remained with Dr., Verwoerd for life. When offered a generous scholarship to Oxford in 1924, just after he had become the first South African to take a doctorate under local auspices, he refused it. Instead he took a much smaller bursary to study at Leipzig, Hamburg and Berlin universi-

HENDRIK VERWOERD

But another fashionable mass interest was also stirring within him. When

South Africa began to take in a quota of the Jewish refugees fleeing from the Hitler regime, Dr. Verwoerd led a delegation of students to Capetown to protest against admitting unnecessary "defilement" of the national white stock.

Dr. Verwoerd explained at the time that it was necessary to protect so small a racial minority as the Afrikaners from the watering down of their original stock to a point where all its uniqueness was

It was as editor of the "Transvaler" that he made his first real mark in pub-lic life. During the war he quite un-ashamedly made use of Nazi propaganda to cause alarm and despondency, and a court found that he did so. He produced and then published with acclamation a constitution for an authoritarian system with a president "responsible only and rigorous control of "un-

From that Nationalist victory fol From that Nationalist victory fol-lowed a decade of the most spectacular rise in South African political history. In 1948 he was a beaten candidate. The next year he was nominated to the Senate and in October, 1950, he became Minister of Native Affairs.

The chief job of this minister was to give substance to the slogan "apartheid" which had brought the Nationalists into power. With the help of the talented Tomlinson Commission and cadres of Nationalist intellectuals in the South African Bureau of Racial Affairs, Dr Verwoord rapidly set up an impressive scaffolding of Bantustans, equal rights in Bantu homelands, Bantu authorities (restoration of chieftainship), and so on.

By 1954 Dr. Verwoerd was the most powerful minister in the cabinet and his inistry easily the most important one. He was stronger even than the Prime Minister, as Dr. Malan discovered. It was Dr. Verwoerd who moved the Nationalist caucus to throw out Mr When the King and Queen visited Havenga, Dr. Malan's nominee for the uth Africa in 1947 he refused to pub succession and elect the already alling succession and elect the already ailing lish a line about the visit. In the House of Assembly he is quite clearly the outstanding member. The fact is that Dr. Verwoerd's complete conviction of his own rightness communicates itself to his listeners—even to his Opposition listeners. It is this conviction which holds some of the greatest langers for South Africa.

There are already signs of despera-tion about the way in which the South African Prime Minister is forcing the pace in his own country. The abolition of the Native representatives from the Assembly and the Senate is one sign of the forced march to what may posof this forced march to what may possibly be nowhere.

Even the growing impatience which Dr. Verwoerd shows with the tardy pro-cesses of the Parliament where he excels looks ominous. It seems sometimes that the Prime Minister believes that South Africa should be broken away entirely from the old alliances and the tedious internal systems with which she has grown up and set on an entirely new

CURB ON PERSONAL LIBERT MARKS NEW REGIME IN GHAN

Manning the Barricades

By ROBERT N. LINDSAY ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—Ghana probably has the highest standard of living of any country in tropical Africa but not all its peo ple are happy. Colonialism has been re-placed by a form of totalitarianism.

Life in Ghana today is geared to President Kwame Nkrumah's declaration that "even a system based on social justice and a democratic constitution may need backing up, during the period following independence, by emergency measures of a totali-

Party, Nkrumah is life chairman and secre tary of the central committee. In the presidential elections last year, Nkrumah polled 1.015,740 votes against 124.623 for Dr. Joseph Danquah, mentor of young Nkrumah and now his most courageous and outspoken op-

Nkrumah has said "the CPP is Ghana and Ghana is the CPP." And no one is al-lowed to forget it. Critics charge that the party uses strong arm tactics and not politi-cal persuasion to win supporters, that it cal persuasion to win supporters, that re-rigs elections and gags political criticism. In the last resort the party can get rid of opponents by invoking the Preventive De-tention Act, which empowers the govern-ment to hold a man for up to five years without trial.

MINORITY POWERLESS

In the CPP-controlled National Assembly of 114 members, the 14 members of the United Party are not permitted to call themselves the opposition. The CPP thought they would sound less objectionable if they were known simply as "minority members of Parliament." They are powerless against the CPP steamroller. Western observers say CPP doctrine is building a national political structure closely patterned on the Soviet model. But some call Nkrumah a realist who doesn't forget that about 95 per cent of Ghana's export trade is with the West.

When independence came in 1957, Britain bequeathed to Ghana a reserve credit of about $190,000,000. The country's develop-ment program and expenditure on many politically inspired projects has reduced that to $90,000,000, all earmarked as part of Ghana's contribution to the Volta River

This mammoth project, estimated to cust about $390,000,000, is planned to end unem-ployment by boosting the economy, now based mainly on cocoa, through the provi-sion of water for sugar cane, rice and other crops—and for hydro-electric power for new industries and an aluminum smelter to work the country's bauxite deposits.

GOOD SCHOOLING

To the man in the street the Ghana econ omy means a per capita income of about $185 a year, high for an underdeveloped country in Africa. Ten per cent of the nearly 7,000,000 population is at school, again a high rate for Africa. The calibre of schooling is good, with emphasis on technical education.

But to some citizens these material considerations are not adequate compensation for political oppression and deprivation of personal liberty.

Nkrumah's closest friends say he would like to ease the pressures but that he is caught up in the party machine.

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — A 32-year-old long-shoreman was sentenced to be hanged at Oakalla Prison May 23 by Mr. Justice Hugh Maclean after an assize court jury here convicted him on a charge of murder Wednesday night. Louis Leforte was charged in the death of two-year-old Tina Marcelle Mackay from a brutal beating last Sept. 18. The jury deliberated four hours and 10 minutes before returning its verdict of guilty.

Leforte's counsel, Harry Rankin of Vancouver, said he will appeal the verdict.

During the three-day trial, Mrs. Margaret McKay, a widow and mother of the dead child, testified that Leforte made a practice of strangling the infant into unconsciousness after bringing her to tears by insistant teasing. Mrs. McKay, who testified Leforte had been living with the family, said Leforte often slapped the child until

MIAMI (UPI) public was victimized by a "fast count" just as much as Ingemar Johannson in his controversial knockout at the hands of Floyd Patterson, veteran Jack "Doc"

Kearns asserted today.
"People pay to see a fight and they should get it," said Kearns shrugging off evidence presented in New York Wed-nesday which indicated Johansson was on the floor more than 11 seconds. "In the early days, the referee would tell you to 'get up and fight' but today they're too quick to count 'em out."

The mandatory eight count, used in Monday night's fiasco, certainly deserved no place in a heavyweight title bout, either, Kearns insisted.

All in all, Kearns felt that the bout was completely un-satisfactory and that while Johansson "proved to be a better fighter than most people thought" the victorious Patter-"isn't the champion a lot of people thought he was. FLOYD TOO HEAVY

Miss Benson also found Gillian Wallace had given an excellent interpretation of the "Property Man." She had done everything right and was never obtrusive.
"Everybody in this cast had a wonderful feeling for theatre," Miss Benson concluded.

This had been a wonderfully vital production but the play was not worthy of the talent. It was pointless and unmotivated, Miss Benson felt.

She would like to have seen the actors a little more inventive in the matter of "magic," she said, noting that one would not have known the rabbit was a rabbit except for the costume.

South Africa's white supremacy government today faced a future loaded with lopeliness and packed with the peril of deepening black-white enmity. Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's decision to quit the British Commonwealth carried tremendous implications both for its own apartheid state and for Britain's alliance of nations.

To the tragic land at the southernmost tip of Africa it signalled an explosive new phase in the white mans.

Having been born 30 years (at least) the string never enjoyed the sport of skin-diving.

Not, at least, as the sport exists today.

When I used to do my best to make like a fish, the skin part of skin-diving was my very own.

The only equipment used in, for instance, a game of underwater follow-the-leader was a leader to follow.

If such things as flippers, masks, goggles, snorkels, and air tanks evisted I didn't know about them.

If such things as flippers, masks, goggles, shorkers, and air tanks existed, I didn't know about them.

Thus I enjoyed only a very primitive look at the wonders which occur deep in the H2O, both salt and fresh.

So I confess to a feeling of envy every time I read about skin-divers, or see them on TV, or watch them set out from Dallas Road to stalk the feroclous ling cod.

Yes, I envy today's skin divers.

I also think a good many of them should have their heads read.

Anould be a law.

He has gone so far as to make representations to the B.C. attorney general, asking for a provincial regulation to protect the lemmings from themselves.

Will suggests that commercial operators should refuse to re-fill tanks or bottles, or provide any other aid to skindiving, to a person who does not possess either a certificate of competence, or a membership in a recognized club.

Will doesn't want to legislate skindiving out of avistores.

He just wants to bring 'em back alive. I heartily second the motion.

And if you think this is too serious a subject for this

New Trellis From England Will Help Busy Gardeners By PENNY SAVER

Gardeners will certainly want to investigate brand new type of trellis that has just arrived from England. You'll never use anything else once you've tried it!

Much superior to wire that gets hot in the sun and burns delicate tendrils of plants and string which is tedious to tie and often breaks, this is made of strong twine that has been completely weatherized.

Green trellis, measuring 60 inches by 72 inches, costs 75 cents; ones measuring 60 inches by 96 inches sell at 89 cents, while others that measure 60 inches by 180 inches are priced

They'd be ideal support for all climbing flowers, vines

Waxy petals of begonias make them a popular house plant. If you would like to get some there are begonias, already planted for you, that sell at 49 cents.

Each is planted in its own plastic pot and they're available in either yellow, pink, orange or scarlet.

For a larger display there are containers that have two bulbs already planted in them. These are priced at 89 cents. Selling at the same price are containers containing gloxinias and amaryllis.

In line with the provocative look of this season's fashions are saucy nylon chemises that come in either white or black. Flatteringly highlighted with panels of lace, chemises have narrow matching ribbons threaded through the waistline and at neck so that adjustment for perfect fit can be made. Crotch

It will be noted that West should have played the queen of spades on South's eight, whereupon South build have been set.

Now, did South give the hand the best play?

Now, did south give the hand the dest may.

The answer is that the best play from the mathematical standpoint would have been to play the ace, followed by the jack of spades. This would give South the hand if either opponent held ten and one trump

That was the best mathematical play, but the play adopted gave West a chance to make a mistake and West fell into the trap.

Richard Basehart Stars in Kipling's 'Light That Failed' at 8

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

I DON'T SUPPOSE any individual performer on television these past years has won himself more devoted fans than has Red Skelton.

For many his Tuesday night soirces are musts. And whether his show is good or not-so-good they are willing to tune him in again the following week safe in the knowledge that the law of averages is working on their side—that sooner or later they will be rewarded by another side-splitter.

Therefore all these good souls must have felt last Tuesday night that all was well with their sets again as the expressive Red returned in the form of Freddle the Freeloader after a long absence following illness

There is something very solid about Skelton and this characteristic somehow comes through the ether, the wires and the glass right into the living room. Beneath the gaiety there is that trace of sadness, halt it, so has Marilyn Monroe when she essays comedy.

I don't thing this commodity can be assimilated signals.

I don't thing this commodity can be assimilated, simulated or learned. I believe it must be born in one or thrust there by life itself in the form of sadness. you get your first look at misery, fear, frustrations and loneliness. Skelton has experienced some if not all of these as everyone knows. sterisis (glass, nully, door, etc.) you get your and sterisis (glass, nully, door, etc.) you get your sterisis (glass, nully, door, etc.) you get your experienced some if not all of these as ever headed at low delivered in Victoria ce of only seems to this distinctive new siding. It might be said that he is their sum total.

That one night Skelton was the finest pantomimist lightfully different, uning the world, one that even the great Marceau might have envied. Though this may not altogether be true either. For Marceau is unique, himself, expressing a speciality. Red, on the other hand, is a man of the people expressing the people, especially North American people.

It was good to see him back where he belongs.

24 RESCUERS DIE TRYING TO SAVE 2

YAHATA, Japan (AP) - Twenty-four rescuers tried to save two coal miners today; and all 26 were believed killed in the choking fumes of a pit fire 3.000 feet below

The manager of the mine and other officials were among the group that failed to come up from the Shinotsuji mine, nine miles from another mine where 71 miners died in a similiar tunnel fire last week.

An air compressor caught fire and trapped a mining party, just as happened in Japan's worst post-war mine disaster last Thursday near Fukuoka.

Of the 28 miners originally trapped in the smoke filled tunnel, 26 made it to the surface.

The 24 rescuers went down without gas masks, parently thinking their task would be simple and swift. Explained one official:

"We didn't notice too much fumes or smoke and didn't think it was too serious an accident."

Ten hours later a police official declared: "We must now presume the missing men to be dead.

MONTE ROBERTS

Having been born 30 years (at least) too soon, I have never enjoyed the sport of skin-diving.

Not, at least, as the sport exists today. When I used to do my best to make like a fish, the skin part of skin-diving was my very own.

The only equipment used in, for instance, a gam of underwater follow-the-leader was a leader to follow.

If such things as flippers, masks, goggles, snorkels, and air tanks existed, I didn't know about them.

Thus I enjoyed only a very primitive look at the wonders which occur deep in the H2O, both salt and fresh. So I confess to a feeling of envy every time I read about skin-divers, or see them on TV, or watch them set out from Dallas Road to stalk the feroclous ling cod.

Yes, I envy today's skin divers.

I also think a good many of them should have their diving alone, attempt more than they are capable of accom-plishing, and in general act like lemmings heading in-exorably for death in the sea.

I am not alone in this opinion, as any experienced diver will be quick to verify.

For instance, Will Lawther, the former RCN diver who operates a sub-marine service in Victoria.

Will has spent so many hours underwater, he can gh himself on his own scales. He is so concerned about the underwater enthusiasts

He has gone so far as to make representations to the B.C. attorney-general, asking for a provincial regulation to protect the leminings from themselves.

Will suggests that commercial operators should refuse to re-fill tanks or bottles, or provide any other aid to skindiving, to a person who does not possess either a certificate of competence, or a membership in a recognized club.

Will doesn't want to legislate skin-diving out of

The treaty now must be ratified by the Canadian Parliament before the huge job of harnessing the Columbia River for power and flood-control can be put into operation.

The treaty moved quickly through the Senate and was approved after just 30 minutes of debate.

He said he had heard reports that differences between the Canadian and British Columbia governments are endangering the treaty. "I certainly hope," he said, the will be possible to overcome some objections apparently causing some delay in British Columbia's consideration of the treaty."

Senator Henry Dworshak, of the treaty said it would Idaho Republican, expressed bring the two countries closer the hope that Canada could together in their cross-border overcome its internal difficul-relationships.

CANADA WON'T BREAK S.A. TARIFF TREATY

OTTAWA (UPI) - Canada will continue to give South Africa Commonwealth preferential tariff treatment despite that country's decision to leave the Commonwealth, acting prime minister Howard Green indicated today.

"Commonwealth preferences are based on treaties among the individual countries and Canada lives up to its treaties," Green told the House of Common

He made the statement when asked by CCF Leader Hazen Argue whether South Africa's decision to leave the Commonwealth on becoming a republic May 31 would mean "automatic economic penalties" against the union senator suggested today that Canadians would be better off working a six-day or even seven-day week with a three-month

Senator Ralph Horner said the week end has become a time for people to "tear around and spend money" and end up back on the job Monday in no shape to work.

The Progressive Conservative senator toid the Senate's manpower committee that he had given the matter long study and believes the trend towards a shorter working week is a mistake.

He said workers on his own farm had much happier lives when they worked six or seven days a week, "I dread a holiday or a long weekend coming up because I knew it always led to trouble," he said. Workers, he said, should stay on the

During the three-month layoff, younger workers would have an opportunity to work and train by stepping into the vacant spot. Industries would avoid costly weekend shutdowns.

"We would accomplish a good deal nore this way and produce our goods cheaper." he said.

The 76-year-old senator, who still runs a wheat farm near Blaine Lake, said such a system would go a long way towards easing unemployment, increasing trade and making family life happier.

He said it would also help farmers who are having difficulty competing in the labor market against the five-day week in
